

In related news from Beloit College, the Logan Museum Bulletin, defunct for 30 years, is again appearing in a New Series. The first volume, still in press at this writing contains two numbers: Reliving the Past: An Analysis fo the 1930 Logan African Expedition, the papers from the 1985 symposium organized by Michael Tarabulski; and French Paleolithic Collections in the Logan Museum of Anthropology. The first volume was edited by Lawrence Breithorde (Beloit College) and Randall White (New York University), and contains a wealth of information on the relations between American and European archaeologists in the 1920s. Tarabulski's videotape, mentioned above, will be available in connection with this new bulletin. Further details will be in the next number of the Bulletin of the History of Archaeology, or may be obtained from Jane Ketcham at the address above.
