
1999 Grasshopper Pueblo: A Story of Archaeology and Ancient, The University of Arizona Press, Tucson.

Woodbury, Richard.

1993 Sixty Years of Southwestern Archaeology: A History of the Pecos Conference, University of New Mexico Press, Albuquerque.

DOI: <http://dx.doi.org/10.5334/bha.10208>

VI. Activities of Various Academic Gatherings Related to the History of Archaeology

October 22 and 23, 2000, the Cultural Collections Committee of the Department of Anthropology at the Field Museum in Chicago hosted an event celebrating the past, present, and future of Field Museum anthropology. The October 22nd program included a stimulating keynote address and public lecture by David R. Wilcox of the Museum of Northern Arizona entitled "Creating Field Anthropology: Why Remembering Matters." Wilcox's paper was followed by commentary by Jonathan Haas of The Field Museum, Elaine Bluhm Herold of the State University of New York at Buffalo, Alice Kehoe of the University of Wisconsin - Milwaukee, and Donald McVicker of North Central College. The October 23rd program included a formal dinner preceded by a cocktail hour in which special exhibits, a slide show of archived photographs, and a challenging treasure hunt that focused on objects originally collected for the World's Columbian Exposition in 1893. After dinner, guests were treated to short presentations by Sibel Barut Kusimba on Henry Field and Paleolithic archaeology, Bennett Bronson on Berthold Laufer and Asian anthropology, Steve Nash on George Dorsey, Jim VanStone on North American anthropology, and John Terrell on A.B. Lewis and Pacific anthropology. Gary Feinman and Steve Nash would like to edit the proceedings from the event and to publish a Fieldiana volume in 2002, coincident with the 100th anniversary of the American Anthropological Association. They would also like to thank the many anthropologists, archaeologists, and old friends, too many to name individually, who attended and supported this event.

VII. Announcements/Sources Relating to the History of Archaeology

*Errata in *Assembling the Past (a volume edited by Alice B. Kehoe and listed in the May 2000, Volume 10, Number 1): Alice B. Kehoe apologizes to Donald McVicker and Douglas Givens for stating erroneously, page 1, that Jonathan Reyman had organized the 1989 AAA session for which several of the papers were prepared for this volume. McVicker and Givens were the organizers, and Reyman the discussant. Additionally, the University of New Mexico Press omitted the paragraph on Fowler in the list of Contributors, page 230: "Don D. Fowler is Kleberg Professor of Historic Preservation and Archaeology at the University of Nevada, Reno. Fowler has been President of the Society for American Archaeology, and contributed to the Reyman-edited Rediscovering Our Past. The Press also omitted, without notifying the volume editors, what was sent them for a frontispiece for the volume, a cartoon "Greetings from Tikal: by Alfred Bendiner (1899-1964), Philadelphia architect/artisan on University of Pennsylvania projects at Tepe Gawra and Khafajeh, Iraq, 1936-1937, and Tikal, Guatemala, 1960. This delightful overview of archaeology at Tikal was suggested by Elin Danien.

The PARI Journal has been reprinting selected portions of the Diary of Sylvanus Griswold Morley who was an Associate of the Carnegie Institution of Washington. The Institution had been engaged during the 20th Century in the excavation of archaeological sites in Mexico, Guatemala, and Honduras. Morley was an archaeological practitioner of many facets, educated at Harvard University, he was a scholar, explorer, and diplomat. While at Harvard, he was chosen by Alfred Tozzer to go as a volunteer to Yucatan. This was to lay the groundwork for many years working with the Carnegie Institution of