C. Works Suggested by Our Readers

De Laguna, Fredericka

2000 Travels Among the Dena: Exploring Alaska's Yukon Valley, University of Washington Press, Seattle. - (Chronicles de Laguna's 1935 expedition along the Tanana and Yukon Rivers, with a geologist and two assistants, to search for Paleoindian sites. She also recorded stories in settlements they visited, published in Tales from the Dena, 1995. Drawing on her field notebooks, journal, and letters, de Laguna describes 1935 interior Alaska in rich and lively detail, as well as the sites and materials she investigated. This is an extraordinary narrative of archaeological thinking by a gifted anthropologist as well versed in ethnology and ethnohistory as in archaeology. For the professionalist, there is such a wealth of insights and data the book should be widely read and seriously pondered) - Alice B. Kehoe
